Includes on-location shooting and the consulting and editing time. A turn around of up to 2 weeks for the images should be expected, and you will receive approximately 50 images (depending on duration of shoot), carefully selected and individually edited. Delivery of these images will be through Dropbox.com where you can download your folder and access your final photographs from any of your devices. You will also receive a link to your online gallery to share on social media, and a USB flash drive containing the full resolution files. You then have the ability to print your images and use them for personal distribution.

Please Note:

Not all images from the day of the shoot are deliverable as each selection of images is carefully decided prior to the delivering of the final photographs to the client. Unedited and RAW files will not be given out under any circumstances. Additional payments may apply if you decide you want additional images from the shoot to be edited and delivered to you apart from what is already given. The selected amount of images you receive from the shoot is what is included in the package and is based on quality.

Content will be kept on file (on dropbox.com) for 2 months, after which the images will no longer be stored. It is your responsibility to make sure you download and save your images in a safe place. After 2 months from the delivery of the final photographs, Chris Gray is no longer responsible for the storage of images.

The client retains printing rights to any images distributed by Chris Gray. All rights to images remain with the photographer, and this includes the right to display any photographs as samples of the photographer's work for the purposes of website advertising and promotion for personal portfolio use. They will not be resold without the client's permission. The client must agree that they will not redistribute or make sales from these images. You can contact Chris Gray directly to discuss this matter.

It is expected that the client will credit any work posted online to the source of the photographer. This may include a facebook page, website or simply the name of the photographer. This keeps your images safe from others using the images you have posted online, because copyright is attached to those photographs which have the photographer's name attached.
